

Chaining derivatives: the back propagation algorithm

"Learning" simply means finding a combination of model parameters that minimises a loss function for a given set of training data samples and their corresponding targets